Paper

Christopher Mark Gore
8729 Lower Marine Road, Saint Jacob, IL 62281 USA
http://www.cgore.com
cgore@cgore.com

Incomplete Draft, November 22, 2011

1 Introduction

Gender separation of populations is a common component of biological evolutionary processes but is rarely employed by evolutionary algorithm designs. The use of gender separation in EAs has been studied before in [1],

References

[1] Dana Vrajitoru. Simulating gender separation with genetic algorithms. In Proceedings of the Genetic and Evolutionary Compuatation Conference (GECCO 2002), pages 634–641. Morgan Kaufmann Publishers, 2002.